

ABSTRACT

Scrap is decreased by a service provider collecting information on would-be scrap materials and sizes by first fabricators and work product needs by second users world wide. The first and second parties are informed of the needs and availabilities by the service provider. The service provider can match availabilities with needs, negotiate terms and prices, take bids, as well as negotiate disputes, run credit checks, track products and shipping schedules, review quality control, etc.